

Cross-Section and Panel Variable and Module Identification

As early as 1977, the General Social Survey began to conceive of batteries of questions as modules, questions designed around a single purpose and asked in a fixed sequence. These modules form the basis of the GSS outside of the replicating core, a standard set of questions asked regularly. Since 2008 the GSS has solicited new modules from researchers and scientists for inclusion in one or more years of the survey. Some modules are asked only once, some repeat on a 4-year or 10-year timeframe, and some modules are asked every year. The GSS treats International Social Survey Programme annual surveys as topical modules for the equivalent GSS year. Because the variable is the primary unit of analysis in the GSS, a variable can belong to multiple modules. With rare exceptions, any variable is only on one module in a given year, and variables are only asked once in the questionnaire. When questions need to be duplicated (in ISSP protocol, question order is fixed), they are typically given new variable names.

In 2006 the GSS started a transition from a replicating cross-sectional design to a design that uses rotating panels. In 2008, there were two components: a new 2008 cross-section and the first reinterviews with eligible respondents from the 2006 GSS. In 2010 the new design was fully implemented. There was a new cross-section, the first reinterviews of the 2008 GSS respondents, and the second and final reinterviews of the 2006 GSS respondents. This three-wave, rolling panel design was also used in 2012. Each GSS in 2006-2010 thus started a new 4-year/3-wave panel, which was completed four years later (2006-08-10, 2008-10-12, 2010-12-14). Each panel is referred to by the year it began (2006, 2008, 2010). Outside of the replicating core, the panel reinterviews were given unique modules that were not included on the respective cross-section interviews, so that more questions could be included within each year of the GSS. Panels may also share modules in common with the cross-section, such as Science Knowledge.

The following table shows two distinct pieces of information. Firstly, it identifies which variables can be found in which GSS datafiles. Most variables are located in the cumulative cross-section. Active Core variables in 2006-2010, as well as variables for modules specific to the rotating panel (2006-2014) also appear in their respective panel datafiles. Please note that each panel datafile contains a single year of valid cross-section data as well, replicating the year where the panel began. There are a number of modules that are totally unique to the panel datafiles, as well as several variables that were panel-only experiments. The 2006 panel includes Age, the Boards Panel of single questions, and ISSP Sport and Leisure. The 2008 panel includes Religion III, Intergroup Relations, Genes, Job Referrals, Global Warming, and Immigration. The 2010 panel includes Number Known II, Scripture, Identity, Social Isolation, Wealth, Business, and ISSP Health and Healthcare.

Second, the table shows which variables can be found in which modules. The majority of variables are found in only one module. 232 variables, or 5.2% of GSS variables, appear on at least two modules, with 11 variables appearing on three modules, and one variable appearing on four modules. Variables are typically shown with the first module that they are associated with in the codebook, which replicates question order from the module. For their position within other listed modules, please consult the CAPI or hardcopy questionnaire available at <http://gss.norc.org/Get-Documentation/questionnaires>

Some modules have Roman numerals after their names. Roman numerals indicate that modules are conceptually similar, but do not duplicate many or any questions. For example, Mental Health I-III all deal with various vignettes and questions about health states and medication. However, Mental Health I and II have no variables in common, while Mental Health III takes from both previous modules. This naming convention helps illustrate that sort of relationship.

In the context of modules, Core refers to both the GSS' standard replicating core, as well as all questions asked before 1985, and a few asked after. Over time, these pseudo-core variables may be organized into modules where appropriate in the codebook, and this document will be updated accordingly. Similarly, this document will be updated as variables are included new modules, including adding new module columns if necessary.
